WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

[28 U.S.C & 2241].

PETITION FOR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS
PURSUANT TO 28 U. S. C. 2241

Petitioner, Rodolfo Herrera-Mena, hereby petitions this Court for a writ of habeas corpus to remedy Petitioner's unlawful detention by Respondents. In support of this petition and complaint for injunctive relief, Petitioner alleges as follows:

CUSTODY

1. Petitioner is in the physical custody of Respondent and the department of Homeland Security ("DHS") former Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Petitioner is detained at the El Centro Service Processing Center / California, part of Department of Homeland Security DHS. Petitioner is under the direct control of Respondent and their agents.

JURISDICTION

2. This action arises under the Constitution of the United States, and the Immigration and Nationality Act ("INA"), 8 U. S. C. § 1101 et seq., as amended by the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act Of 1996 (IIRIRA), Pub L. No. 104 – 208, 110 Stat. 1570, and the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA"), 5 U. S. C. § 701 et seq.

3. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U. S. C. § 2241; art. I § 9, cl. 2 of the United States Constitution ("Suspension Clause"); and 28 U. S. C. § 1331, as Petitioner is presently in custody under color of the authority of the United States, and such custody is in violation of the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States. This court may grant relief pursuant to 28 U. S. C. § 2241 5 U. S.C. § 702, and the All writs Act, 28 U. S.C. § 1651. This Court also has jurisdiction over this case and these issued pursuant to 28 U.S.C § 1331. Constitutional and federal law governing immigration establishes subject-matter jurisdiction. 28 U.S.C. § 2241 gives the district court jurisdiction to grant relief when a person is detained in violation of the constitution or federal law Magna-Pizano v Reno 144 F. 3d 603, 610 (9th Cir.2000) (citations omitted): Goncalves v. Reno 144 F.3d 110, 119 (1st Cir 1998). In Reno v. American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee, 525 U. S. 471, 482, 83 (1999), the Supreme court makes that this habeas petition is not barred by 8 USC 1252 (g). Jurisdiction also extends to final orders of deportation, despite changes in immigration law regarding judicial scrutiny enacted in 1996. See INS v. Cyr, 533 US 289 314 92001). Bravo v. Ashcroft, 341 F. 3d 590, 592-93 (5th Cir. 2003), Zadyvas v Underdown, 185 F.3d 279 (5thCir.) stated "that federal courts retain jurisdiction to

1 review statutory and constitutional claims” as well as to hear challenge to continue detention of 2 deportable immigrant. Zadyvas v. Davis 533 US. 682, 687. The court therefore, has every right
3 to hear Mr. Rodolfo Herrera-Mena’s claim. Also this court has jurisdiction under Tijani v.
4 Willis, 430 F.3d 1241 (9th Cir. 2005) and Nadarajah v. Gonzales, 443 F. 3d 1069 (9th Cir. 2006)

5 4. Petitioner has exhausted any and all administrative remedies to the extent required by 6 law.

7 VENUE

8
9 5. Pursuant to Braden v. 30th Judicial Circuit Court of Kentucky, 410 U. S. 484, 493-
10 500 (1973), venue lies in the United States District Court for the Southern District of California, 11 the judicial district in which Petitioner resides.

ARGUMENT

THIS COURT MUST RELEASE THE PETITIONER FROM THE CUSTODY OF THE RESPONDENTS UNDER APPROPRIATE CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISION.

In Zadvydas v. Davis 533 U. S. 678 (2001). The Supreme Court in held those six months is the presumptively reasonable period during which INS may detain aliens in order to effectuate their removal. Id. at 702. Interim administrative regulations also recognize that the HQPDU has six-month period for determining whether there is significant likelihood of an alien's removal in the reasonable foreseeable future. 8 C. F.R. 241.13 (b)(2) (ii).

Petitioner was ordered removed on May 09, 2007, and the removal order became final on May 09, 2007. Therefore, the six-month presumptively reasonable removal period for Petitioner ended on November 09, 2007.

Petitioner appealed the IJ decision to the BIA, which the BIA dismissed his appeal, then Petitioner filed petition for review the BIA's decision to the Court of appeals for the Ninth Circuit case # 07-73671 he was granted a stay of removal pending his appeal.

1 This is a very thin precedential reed on which respondents would rest a sweeping denial
 2 of liberty. Respondents would have this Court uphold an automatic rule of detention co-
 3 terminous with any legal challenges the deportee raises. That, however, is not only unfair, but it
 4 is not the law of this Circuit.

 6 Ninth Circuit Case Law Supports This Court's Exercise of Discretion in Releasing
 7 Deportees from Detention During the Pendency of Colorable Challenges to the Predicate
 8 Proceedings Underlying Their Removals.

9 In Tijani v. Willis, 430 F.3d 1241 (9th Cir. 2005), the Court reviewed a § 2241 habeas 10 petition before judge Hayes by deportee who had been held in custody for 32 months awaiting 11 the outcome of his Appeals. Distinguishing Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510 (2003), because 12 Tijani did not concede he was deportable, the Court ordered his release unless he was provided 13 with a bail hearing and found unsuitable for release under the usual factors of risk of flight or 14 danger to the community. Id. at 1242.

15 In his concurring opinion, judge Tashima expanded on the reasoning underlying the 16 decision in order to provide guidance to the courts. Id. at 1243 (Tashima, J., concurring). Judge 17 Tashima saw the heart of the case to be a problematic decision, In re Joseph, 22 I. & N. Dec.
 18 799 (BIA 1999), which he stated erroneously treated 8 U.S.C. § 1226 (C) as permitting indefinite 19 detention. Id. at 1243-44. Rather, Zadvydas made it clear that “[w]hen such a fundamental right
 20 [as personal liberty] is at stake, the Supreme Court has insisted on heightened procedural 21 protections to guard against the erroneous deprivation of the right.” Id. at 1244. The natural 22 limitation on authority to detain, in Judge Tashima’s view, is “[o]nly those immigrants who 23 could not raise a ‘substantial’ argument against their removability should be subject to 24 mandatory detention. Id. at 1247. Such a standard “strikes the best balance between the alien’s 25 liberty interest and the government’s interest in regulating immigration.” Id. Because Tijani had 26 a potentially meritorious claim that his conviction was not a categorical crime of removal 27 turpitude, he made a showing of a “substantial argument” which would warrant release on 28 appeal. Id. at 1247-48. Conversely, those detainees who cannot raise a substantial argument against their deportation have an incentive to flee if not detained, so release is not appropriate.
Id. at 1247. Noting the perverse penalizing effect of detention for those who have the best reasons to stay and fight, Judge Tashima observed, “By subjecting immigrants who, like Tijani,

1 raise difficult questions of law in their removal proceedings to detention while those proceedings
2 are conducted, the Joseph standard forces those immigrants to endure precidely who Tijani has 3 endured: detention that lasts for a prolonged period of months or years.” Id. at 1246.

4 Similarly, In Nadarajah v. Gonzales, 443 F. 3d 1069 (9th Cir. 2006), a case brought 5 before Judge Burns, the Court considered an indefinite detainee held under suspicion of terrorist 6 affiliation. Nadajarah was seeking to challenge his detention and to support his claim for 7 asylum, but the government relied on the silence of the asylum detention statute to detain
8 Nadajarah while his litigation proceeded. Id. at 1076 -78. However, the Court of Appeals held 9 that the asylum detention statute was equally subject to the strictures of Zadvydus. Id. at 1082.
10 Moreover, the Court held the principles of Fed. R. App. Proc. 23(b) allowing release on bail
11 pending appeals apply to such immigration detentions. Id. at 1083. The usual standards operate 12 in such cases: (1) probability of success on merits and irreparable harm; or (2) serious legal 13 question and a balance of the hardships. Id. Moreover, the probability of success correspondingly
14 lessens at the length of detention increases Id. 1083-84. In Nadarajah, the Court found the 52
15 months of detention were great hardship that accordingly reduced the required showing of 16 likelihood of success.

17 Petitioner’s case compares favorably in the fact situation in Tijani and Nadarajah, and 18 therefore he is equally entitled to consideration for release. Like Tijani, petitioner can raise his 19 argument for release through the vehicle of a § 2241 petition, and he too can point to substantial 20 arguments regarding both his predicate criminal conviction and the deportation proceeding.

21 Petitioner has raised three substantive arguments attacking these predicate proceedings.
22 First, he has argued that he was not subject to the “stop-time” rule, which deprived him of the 23 ability to seek relief from removal. This is because his criminal conviction for possession for sale 24 of controlled substance cocaine was not categorical crimes of an aggravated felony because 25 petitioner was never found with any sales material nor was found with large amount of money 26 during the arrest . Petitioner was convicted by jury trial, and Petitioner is in process to vacate his 27 criminal conviction under petition of habeas corpus under ineffective assistance of counsel, his 28 case is pending in California Supreme Court. please see exhibit (1). If it is not an aggravated felony, then it did not stop time for petitioner to accrue continuous residence, allowing him to apply for discretionary relief under 8 U.S.C § 1229 b (d)(1). Nor would it count as bases for deportation under 8 U.S.C. § 1227(a)(2)(A)(ii). Second, petitioner has argued that he was

1 effected by his counsel during the criminal trial which is violation to his due process and also he 2 was never informed of the immigration consequences after he was convicted by jury trial, his 3 counsel never advised him about his right to appeal the conviction, and the consequences of 4 being deported if he did not appeal in the underlying criminal cases. Under California Law, this
5 is ground of vacating his guilty plea and overturning his conviction. See Cal Penal Code §
6 1016.5 (imposing statutory duty upon judiciary to warn aliens about immigration consequences
7 of guilty plea); People v. Gontiz, 58 Cal. App. 4th 1309 (1997) (court must inform defendant of 8 all immigration consequences as required by statute); People v. Soriano, 194 Ca. App. 3d. 1470
9 (1987) (allowing defendant to attached the conviction for failure to advise of immigration
10 consequences). Third, petitioner was deprived of effective assistance of counsel, his attorney
11 never filed any motion to challenge the search warrant, nor did advise the jury of less charges
12 and the elements of possession for sale during substantial and a critical portion of his criminal 13 proceedings. Any one of these claims would count as a “substantial question” under the Tashima
14 analysis in Tijani; together, they show petitioner has reasonable basis for his legal challenges.
15 As Judge Tashima observed, the detainee need not show certainty of outcome to gain release, 16 just that “a closer look is surely required.” Tijani, 430 F.3d at 1248 (Tashima, J., concurring).

17 Also in Nadarajah, petitioner here can demonstrate a basis for release under the factors
18 in Fed. R. App. P. 23(b). He raises three substantive and complex legal questions. His continued
19 loss of personal liberty in itself constitutes irreparable harm. As for the balance of hardship, 20 whereas the Court in Nadarajah found that 52 months detention was very burdensome detention
21 which correspondingly lessened the required showing of likely success on appeal, petitioner here 22 has been in custody since July 29, 2205, and in respondents custody since March 09, 2007. His 23 burden of probable success, too, must be significantly lessened.

24 Balancing the factors identified in case law for release of detainees while legal challenges
25 are pending, petitioner is entitled to release at least as much as petitioners in Tijani and 26 Nadarajah.

27 This Court has recently issued an order in Jesse Mustanish, (aka) Jesse William Alfaro, 28 case #(07 cv 1100 WQH (LSP)) , Joel Judulang, case # (07 cv 1414) and Joes Forrero, case #
(N/A).

1 In Jesse Mustanich, this Court granted the petitioner petition of habeas corpus and 2 ordered that he will be granted a bail ,the Immigration Judge / San Diego granted him a bond ,
3 but the DHS appealed the IJ's decision and his case now pending in the BIA..

4 In Joese Forrero, this Court granted him his petition of habeas corpus, and ordered that 5 he will be given a bail hearing, on March 3, 2008, the IJ granted him a bail, but the DHS
6 appealed the IJ's decision.

7 In Joel Judulang, this Court granted him his petition of habeas corpus on February 12, 8 2008,, and ordered to provides him bail hearing within (30) days.

9 This Court should, grant petitioner his petition of habeas corpus compares to 10 Mustanich, Forrero, and Judulang, because petitioner has merits on his appeal in the Court of 11 appeals, and that he is in process to overturn his criminal conviction, Petitioner is not a flight risk
12 he once was granted a bail by his Deportation Officer Reyna and officer in Charge at El Centro 13 Processing Center, but the Field Office Director denied it due to his criminal conviction .

14 A Bond of not More Than $1.500 Is Appropriate on the 15 Circumstances of this Case.

16 Respondents request, in the alternative, that if petitioner is released from their custody, 17 this court order a bond be posted. Petitioner opposes the setting of any financial condition as 18 inappropriate and unnecessary.

19 In striking down a civil commitment statute which placed the burden on the detainees to 20 prove they were not a danger to the public in order to obtain release, the Supreme Court in 21 Foucha v. Louisiana, 504 U.S. 71 (1992), noted that "[I]n our society, liberty is the norm, and 22 detention prior to trial or without trial is the carefully limited exception." Id. at 83, quoting 23 United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 755 (1987). The Supreme Court likewise relied on 24 Foucha and Salerno in Zadvydas to hold that indefinite civil confinement of deportees was 25 unacceptable. See 533 U.S. at 690-91.

(If you have additional grounds for relief, use a separate page for each ground. State ground 2 on page four. For additional grounds, make copies of page four and number the additional grounds in order.)

Ineffective Assistance of counsel

a. Supporting facts:

Tell your story briefly without citing cases or law. If you are challenging the legality of your conviction, describe the facts upon which your conviction is based. If necessary, attach additional pages. CAUTION: You must state facts, not conclusions. For example, if you are claiming incompetence of counsel you must state facts specifically setting forth what your attorney did or failed to do and how that affected your trial. Failure to allege sufficient facts will result in the denial of your petition. (See In re Swain (1949) 34 Cal.2d 300, 304.) A rule of thumb to follow is: who did exactly what to violate your rights at what time (when) or place (where). (If available, attach declarations, relevant records, transcripts, or other documents supporting your claim.)

Petitioner's Previous Counsel (Gabriel Silvers) Failed to investigate the Probable Cause for the Search Warrant. Petitioner was prejudiced by the Ineffective Assistance of Counsel since, there is a reasonable probability that he could have uncovered a defense to the charges by unsealing parts of the search warrant. Petitioner's counsel failed to instruct the jury of less charges and the elements of Possession for sale of Controlled Substance.

The Counsel failed to instruct the jury that this is Petitioner's first offense of drug-related charges and that he was eligible for drugs program.

Petitioner's counsel failed to inform his client about his rights to appeal the conviction to higher court, and that he could face deportation and excluded of his mother.

b. Supporting cases, rules, or other authority (optional):

7. Ground 2 or Ground _____ (if applicable):

MC-275

The trial Court failed to instruct the jury about less charges, and the elements of the possession for sale of controlled substance, and that because of Petitioner's first offense of drug related charges he could be convicted of less charges or could be sent to drug programs.

a. Supporting facts:

The Trial Court Prejudicially failed to sua sponte instructions to the jury trial about less charges and the elements of possession for sale of controlled substance, the trial Court prejudicially failed to instruct the jury of Petitioner's first offense ever of controlled substance and that he is eligible for drug treatment programs.

INTRUDUCTION

1. Rudy Mena, The Petitioner, was found guilty by a jury trial and was convicted of possession for sale of controlled substance in violation of Health & Safety Code in violation of Penal Code § 11351, Petitioner was represented by private counsel, Mr. Gabriel Silvers. Mr. Silvers failed to file a motion to challenge the search warrant, despite the fact that no probable cause appeared on the face of the warrant. Mr. Silver ever discuss with Petitioner his appeal rights to appeal after he was found guilty by the jury. Mr. Mena submitted a petition of writ of habeas corpus challenging his criminal conviction on ground ineffective assistance of counsel. His petition was denied by the Court of Appeal for the state of California Fourth District, Division Three, case No.: (G039663). Due to the result of Petitioner's of his Due Process Clause, he is being facing deportation from the United States to Mexico, and facing extremist hardship by loosing his family and love ones.

II. PARTIES

2. Petitioner, Rudy Mena, was convicted by a jury trial for the violation of Health & Safety Code § 11351. On January 20, 2006, he was sentenced to serve a three years sentence in state prison. On August 1, 2007, Petitioner was released from state prison and was picked and held by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), and was placed on removal proceedings. Petitioner is currently incarcerated at El Centro Service Processing Center.

3. Edmond G. Brown, Jr, Attorney General of the State of California, Mr. Edmond G. Brown is the Attorney General of the State of California, he is responsible for the litigate Petitioner, and is responsible for convict Petitioner and sent him to prison.

4. Robert G. Rilliamas, the Officer in Charge in El Centro Processing Center part of the Department of Homeland Security, Mr. Rilliamas the legal custodian of Petitioner.

III. STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

5. Petitioner, Rudy Mena, was arrested on July 29, 2005, when his house was searched by police pursuant to a search warrant. The search warrant was obtained following a telephone call between a confidential informant and a person whom the police officer believe was petitioner. The only information given about the timing between the call and execution of the search warrant. Based on this phone call, police acquired a search warrant and searched Petitioner's house.

6. Petitioner was charged in criminal complaint with one count of violation California Health & Safety Code § 11351, possession for sale of controlled substance. His preliminary hearing was held on August 15, 2005, after which he was bound held over for trial on the one charge on the complaint. Following the preliminary hearing, Petitioner was represented by private counsel Gabriel Silvers, who never filed a motion to challenge the search warrant, despite the fact that no probable cause appeared on the face of the warrant.

7. Prior to the execution of the search warrant, police officers arrived at approximately nine in the morning. Detective Schoales watched the front of the house. Detective Schoales testified that at approximately 9:30 AM, a man he identified as Petitioner's co-defendant, Mr. Martinez Soto, parked in Petitioner's driveway in green colored Honda. Mr. Martinez Soto carried a small cardboard box with him. He went inside of the residence, then came out about five minutes later and moved his car to the street. About twenty minutes later, the police knocked on the front door of Petitioner's home, and entered when Petitioner opened the door.

8. When the police entered the house, they found the cardboard box that had been carried by Mr. Martinez Soto hidden in the couch near where Mr. Martinez Soto was found to be setting. Inside the box, the officers identified ten separate small plastic bags. Inside each bag was a white substance. Officer Topartzer recognized it as a substance consistent with cocaine.

9. Police also found what they claim to have been a "pay-owe" sheet. They did not find any fire arms or weapons, large amount of cash, or any paraphernalia consistent with selling drugs such as cussing substance or scales. Officer Topartzer also testified that Petitioner's fingerprints were not on the box, but Mr. Martinez Soto's fingerprints were on the box. However, Officer Topartzer put forth the theory of the prosecution that Mr. Martinez Soto brought the cocaine over to Petitioner's house to sell it to Petitioner, and that after Mr. Martinez Soto arrived, the negotiated regarding the price, which was reflected on the pay-owe sheet.

10. Following the testimony of Officers Toparatzer, Schoales and Reilly, the people and both defendants entered into a stipulation regarding the chemical test results of the substance inside of the confiscated box. The jury deliberated for about four hours, after which they returned with a guilty verdict on the one count on the information with regard to Petitioner.

11. Following the verdict, Petitioner spoke with his attorney, who apologized to Petitioner for losing the case. Petitioner did not see his attorney again until January 20, 2006, at his sentencing hearing. At the hearing, the Judge sentenced Petitioner to serve three years in state prison. She told Petitioner, "you have the absolute right to appeal me; and if you do, you have the right to appeal within 60 days." Petitioner's attorney again failed to explain to Petitioner his appeal rights.

IV.

ARGUMENT

1. PETITIONER SHOULD BE GRANTED RELIEF FROM DEFAULT UNDER THE DOCTRINE OF CONSTRUCTIVE FILING.

11. Rule 4.305 of the California Rules of Court provides that Notice of appeal must be filed within (60) days of the rendition of judgment. Petitioner requests that he be granted relief from default arising from expiration of the (60) day limit.

12. California Courts have consistently liberally exercise their power to permit the late filing of notice to appeal. See In re Benoit (1973) 10 Cal.3d 72,81-84. Under Benoit, a defendant who has acted diligently to protect his appellate rights may be entitled to relief under "compelling circumstances." In Re Benoit, Supra, 10 Cal. 3d at 87.

13. Thus, where a defendant has demonstrated his intent to file an appeal in a timely fashion, the doctrine of constructive filling will relieve him of his failure to do so when he is thwarted by circumstances beyond his control. For example, a defendant who relies on his attorney's promise to file notice to appeal, or who depends on prison officials to mail the notice, may be held to have complied with the (60) day filing deadline. In Re Benoit, supra, 10 Cal. 3d at 86-87; People v. Slobodian (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 362; In Re fountain (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 715.

14. Relief has also been granted where a defendant could show where he or she was never advised of the right to appeal and was ignorant of appeal procedures. In Re Arthur N. (1974) 36 Ca. App. 3d 935; People v. Riley (1977) 73 Ca. App. 3d Supp. 1; Castro v. Superior Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 614, 621; see also In re Hernandez (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 893, 894; see also Cal. Penal Code § 1240.1.

15. The doctrine of constructive filing applies to Petitioner's case as well. Following Petitioner's conviction, his attorney, Gabriel Silvers, merely told that he was very sorry that petitioner had lost his case and did not discuss an appeal with Petitioner. Over a month later, at the sentencing hearing, the Judge provided the Petitioner with this advisal: "You have the absolute right to appeal me; and if you do, you have the right to appeal within (60) days."

California Rules of Court 4.305 states:

After imposing a sentence or making an order deemed to be a final judgment in a criminal case upon conviction after trial, or after imposing sentence following a revocation of probation, except where the revocation is after the defendant's admission of violation of probation, the court shall advise the defendant of his or her right to appeal, of the necessary steps and time for taking an appeal, and of the right of an indigent to have counsel appointed by the reviewing court. A reporter's transcript of the proceedings required by this Rule shall be forthwith prepared and certified by the reporter and file with the clerk.

16. In the Instant case, the Judge's advisal can hardly be seen as having fulfilled her duty to apprise Petitioner of his appeal rights pursuant to this section. She did not advise Petitioner of his right to appeal the judgment, but said you can appeal "me.". To a criminal defendant, this does nothing to convey the substance of the right. Moreover, the Judge failed completely to describe the necessary steps for taking the appeal, and as for the time, she simply stated that he had the right to appeal within (60) days. There was nothing in her statement that conveyed that the time period for taking an appeal was mandatory and that his appeal rights would be lost if he did not so act within the (60) days following the rendition of judgment.

17. Moreover, throughout his criminal case, Petitioner was represented by private counsel, Mr. Gabriel Silvers. Mr. Silvers failed to ever discuss with Petitioner his appeal rights. As such, Petitioner's only advice regarding his appeal rights was utterly insufficient statement made by the trial judge at sentencing. The California Court of Appeals has recognized that courts must inform defendants of their rights because "[e]xperience has shown that persons who have just been convicted of a crime are among the most ignorant of litigants, less able than most to communicate with legal advisers who often failed to perform the most elementary duties one would expect of them." Castro, supra, 40 Cal. App. 3d at 619. Thus, the court has recognized the prevalence of Mr. Silvers' failure in this case. However, the courts have attempted to remedy this by requiring sentencing courts to advise defendants of their appeal rights. Nevertheless, in this case, the Judge offered Petitioner a completely inadequate advisal.

18. Indeed, it was not until Petitioner hired a new counsel following his release from prison that he discovered that he had a right to appeal his conviction in the first place. Petitioner's new counsel had to acquire and pay for transcripts in order to properly prepare his petition of writ of habeas corpus to the California Court of Appeal Fourth District Division Three, later the petition was denied. As it is likewise a writ of habeas corpus, as such, Petitioner has exercise utmost diligence in protecting his appellate right.

2. DEFENSE COUNSEL'S FAILURE TO INVESTIGATE THE PROBABLE CAUSE FOR THE SEARCH WARRANT CONSTITUTED INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL.

19. The judgment in this action is unlawful because Petitioner was denied the effective assistance of counsel in his trial in violation of his federal constitutional rights as guaranteed by the Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and his state constitutional rights as guaranteed by article I section 1, 7, 15 and 16 of the California constitution.

20. Criminal defendants have the right to be effectively represented by counsel, whether retained or appointed. People v. Frierson, 25 Cal. 3d 142, 162 (1979). Ineffective counsel is counsel who failed to act in a manner expected of a reasonably competent attorney acting as a diligent advocate. People v. Pope, 23 Cal. 3d 412, 425 (1979) [based on U.S. Const., Amend. VI; Ca. Const., Art. I, sec. 15].

21. The right of defendant in criminal proceedings to the effective assistance of counsel flows from the Sixth Amendment, made applicable to the states by the Fourteenth, as well as from the California Constitution. Id., Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668 (1984).

22. The Court must determine "whether the advice was within the range of competence demanded of attorneys in criminal cases" (McMann v. Richardson, 297 U.S. 759, 771 (1970)); see also Scot v. Wainwright, 698 F.2d 427 (11th Cir. 1983)); and "whether the assistance rendered by the attorney demonstrates 'faithful representation' of the interest of the client," Tollet v. Henderson, 411 U.S. 258, 268 (1973). See also Dyer v. Crisp, 613 F.2d 275 (10th Cir. 1980) [Sixth Amendment requires defense counsel to "exercise the skill, judgment and diligence of a reasonably competent defense attorney"]].

23. In Strickland v. Washington, supra, in response to the Petitioner's claim, the Supreme Court adopted the standard that defense attorney must provide reasonably effective assistance. The Court held that to prevail on claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, a defendant must prove that the representation provided by his or her counsel "fell below an objective standard of reasonableness." Id., at 687-689.

24. The California Supreme Court set forth the general standard of competency in People v. Pope, (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 412. In order to prove ineffective assistance of counsel under Art. I, section 16 of the California Constitution, Petitioner must:

Prove the counsel failed to make particular investigation and that the omission resulted in the denial or inadequate representation of a potentially meritorious defense. People v. Williams (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 883, 936, 245 Cal. Rptr. 336, 751, P. 2d 395. In particular, Petitioner must show that counsel knew or should have known that further investigation was necessary and must establish the nature and relevance of the evidence that counsel failed to present or discover. Finally, it must shown that the omission was not attributable to a tactical decision which a reasonably competent, experienced criminal defense attorney would make. People v. Frierson, (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 142, 158, Cal. Rptr. 281, 599 P.2d Cal. Rptr. 587. In re Sixto, (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1247, 259 Cal. Rptr. 491, 496.

25. Here, defense Counsel's performance "fell below an objective standard of reasonableness," in that it was not "reasonable considering all the circumstances." Strickland v. Washington, supra, 466 U.S. at 687-689. Trial counsel, Mr. Silvers, was presented discovery, which included the search warrant that was obtained that led to Petitioner's arrest. The search warrant that was given to defense counsel, provides no indicia of probable cause. Rather, the issuing court in this case sealed the entire search warrant. In such a case, it is inconceivable that counsel would not even investigate further the basis for the search warrant.

26. One of the most fundamental components of the effective assistance is the obligation to conduct an adequate investigation of the facts of the case. As the Supreme Court held in Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. at 691, counsel must, at minimum, conduct reasonable investigation enabling him to make informed decisions about how best represent his client.¹ Counsel for an individual accused of a crime has a "duty to conduct careful and legal investigations and inquiries with a view to developing matters of defense in order that he may make informed decisions on his client's behalf..." In re Saunders (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1033, 1041.

27. Here defense counsel's performance "fell below an objective standard of reasonableness," in that it was not "reasonable considering all the circumstances."

¹ See also Hendricks v. Vasquez, 074 F. 3d 1099, 1109 (9th Cir. 1992) (vacating conviction); United States v. Burrows, 872 F.2d 915, 918 (9th Cir. 1989) (reversing conviction for failure to investigate a mental defense); Evans v. Lewis, 855 F. 2d 631, 637 (9th Cir. 1988) (holding that a failure to investigate "cannot be construed as a trial tactic, where counsel did not even bother to view relevant documents that were available).

Strickland v. Washington, supra, 466 U.S. at 687-689. When a defendant is arrested based upon a search warrant, it is clearly within counsel's duty of competence to investigate the probable cause for the warrant. While, generally, a failure to investigate may be difficult to prove because investigation generally takes place outside of the courtroom and off the record, whether an investigation pursuant to a sealed warrant has been performed is quite transparent in California. This is because that investigation would have begun with a proper motion to unseal the warrant pursuant to People v. Hobbs, (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 948. In general, this would have resulted in at least a partial unsealing of the warrant.

28. The California Supreme Court in the Hobbs decision noted that in many cases it is effective to redact the identity of the informant from the search warrant affidavit and then furnish the edited search warrant affidavit to the defendant. Id. at 962-63. The Court recognized in the Hobbs decision the difficulty a sealed affidavit presents for defense counsel, noting that, when most or all of the affidavit has been sealed, the defendant cannot be reasonably expected to make the preliminary showing under People v. Luttenberger (1950) 50 Cal. 3d 1 in order to obtain disclosure of a confidential informant in a search warrant affidavit. In Petitioner's case, the entire search warrant affidavit was sealed, with the exception of the name of the affiant. Therefore, Petitioner's counsel should have moved for unsealing of the affidavit to perform a proper investigation to determine whether to challenge the accuracy of the facts supporting probable cause for the warrant. The failure to do so constituted a complete failure to investigate what may have been a complete defense to the charges.

III. PETITIONER WAS PREJUDICED BY THE INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL SINCE HE THERE IS A REASONABLE PROBABILITY THAT HE COULD HAVE UNCOVERED A DEFENSE TO THE CHARGES BY UNSEALING PARTS OF THE SEARCH WARRANT.

29. In ineffective assistance of counsel, the prejudice test is whether it is reasonably probable that a determination more favorable to the defendant would have resulted in the absence of counsel's failure. People v. Fosselman, (1983) 33 Cal. 3d. 572, 584; People v. Pope, 23 Cal. 3d 412. The defense must show a reasonable probability of different outcome, i.e., a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the result. (Strickland v. Washington, (1984) 466 U.S. 668.) The standard of reversal is that the chances of a more favorable outcome must be significant, less than a preponderance (50%), but great enough to undermine in the existing outcome. People v. Howard, (1987) 190 cal. App. 3d 41, 45, 235 Cal. Rptr. 223.

30. In this case, because of counsel's complete failure a motion to unseal all or part of the search warrant, none of the facts supporting probable cause for the warrant are available to Petitioner for this petition, and he thus is at a loss to examine them to determine if he would have been able to mount a successful motion to suppress. However, it is probable, had at least a portion of the search warrant been unsealed, that a motion to quash could have been filed based on the veracity of the statements therein. There then exists a reasonable probability that the filing of a motion to quash would have resulted in determination more favorable to the defendant. The court can make this finding based upon its knowledge of the plea bargaining process alone.

31. In the alternative, as noted above, it is clear that counsel did not even take the first step in the investigation of the facts underlying probable cause for the warrant, because no motion was filed to unseal the warrant. The Supreme Court of the United States has noted that there are some instances where prejudice should be presumed. One example of the instance where prejudice should be presumed is in cases of an actual conflict of interest. See Cuyler v. Sullivan (1980) 446 U.S. 335, 345-350. The reasoning for this is that, in such an instance, counsel breaches the duty of loyalty, "perhaps the most basic of counsel's duties." Strickland, supra, 466 U.S. at 692. Another of counsel's most basic duties is the duty of competence, which includes, in the case of a criminal defense attorney, the duty to investigate. Therefore, counsel clearly and completely failed to perform competently in this case.

32. While counsel's complete failure to investigate may very well have been harmless, it certainly is not within Petitioner's powers to adduce facts that lead will help this court determine whether he was prejudiced by that failure because he cannot now make a motion to unseal the search warrant. Only his former attorney had that power, and he did not exercise it. Because, in this case, it is so clear that counsel did not even begin to investigate the facts supporting the issuance of the search warrant, such a limited presumption should be applied in this case under these facts, as Petitioner has shown that his attorney completely failed to perform his duties competently.

33. The proper result here is to grant the Petition for habeas corpus on the grounds of ineffective assistance during the trial, so that Petitioner can have his defense handled competently with the proper evidence presented to the jury.

PETITIONER CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT TO EFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL

34. Criminal defendants have the right to be effectively represented, whether retained or appointed. People v. Frierson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 142, 162, 158 Cal. Rptr. 281, 291.) Ineffective counsel is counsel who failed to act in manner to be expected of a reasonably competent attorney acting diligent advocate, and that counsel's representation result in the withdraw of potentially meritorious defense. People v. Pope (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 412, 425, 152 Cal. Rptr. 732, 739 [based on U.S. Constitution, Amend. VI; Cal. Const., Art. I, sec. 15]).

35. The right of defendant in criminal proceedings to the effective assistance of counsel flows from Six Amendment, made applicable to the states by the Fourteenth, as well as the California Constitution. Strickland v. Washington (1984) 466 U.S. 668.)

36. California Supreme Court set forth the general standard of competency in People v. Pope (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 412, 152 Cal. Rptr. 732. In order to prove ineffective assistance of counsel under Article I, section 16 of the California Constitution, petitioner must prove that counsel failed to make particular investigations and that the omissions resulted in the denial or inadequate representation resulted in the denial or inadequate on a potentially meritorious defense. People v. Williams (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 883, 936, 245 Cal. Rptr. 336, 751 P. 2d 395). In particular, petitioner must show that the counsel knew or should have known that further investigation was necessary and must establish the nature and relevance of the evidence that counsel failed to present or discover. Finally, it must also be shown that the omission was not attributed to tactical decision which a reasonably competent, experienced criminal defense attorney would make. People v. Frierson (1979) 25 Cal, 3d 142, 158 Cal, Rptr. 281, 599 P. . 2d Cal. 587.) (In re sexto (1989) 48 Cal, 3d 1247, 259 Cal. Rptr. 491, 496.)

37. Here. Defense counsel's Mr. Gabriel Silver performance 'fell bellow an objective standard of reasonableness', in that it was not "reasonable considering all the circumstances". Strickland v. Washington, supra, 466 U.S. 668, 687-689). Mr. Silver failed to file motion to challenge search warrant, and failed to advise Petitioner about his right to appeal the conviction and seek to review it in higher Court, also Silver failed to discuss the conviction with petitioner and that the conviction could result in being deported and excluded from entering to the United States, Petitioner is now faced with disastrous Immigration consequences and will suffer the extremist hardship if deported to Mexico, if Petitioner knows about the Immigration consequences, he will ask his counsel to appeal the conviction or ask the sentencing Judge to lower the sentence for less than one year so he could avoid the deportation. Defense counsel was aware that the petitioner was not a U.S. citizen, in spite of awareness, defense counsel failed to investigate the Immigration consequences and failed to advised his client of the adverse Immigration consequences he would be subjected to, petitioner has severely prejudiced.

38. To prevail on his claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, Mr. Rudy Mena must prove (1) that his counsel's performance fell below an objective standard of reasonableness, and (2) that the deficiency in his counsel's performance prejudice him. Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668 692, 80 L. Ed. 2d. 647, 104 S. Ct. 2052 (1984).

39. While the Ninth Circuit determined what "more" would cause a defense counsel's advice, or lack thereof, regarding the immigration consequences of a conviction to fall below an objective standard of reasonableness, the 9th Circuit noted that the Second Circuit has held that an affirmative misrepresentation regarding immigration consequences is deficient under Strickland. United States v. Couto, 311 F.3d 179, 178-88 (2d Cir. 2002). In Couto, the Second Circuit noted that it had previously held "that an attorney's failure to inform a client of deportation consequences of his conviction, without more, does not fall below an objective standard of reasonableness," id. At 187 (citing United States v. Santelises, 509 F.2d 703, 704 (2d Cir. 1975)), but recognized that the circumstances of Couto's case were more egregious. In Couto, as here, counsel had not merely failed to advise his client regarding deportation consequences: in response to his client's inquiry, counsel assured Couto that while deportation was possibility, "there were many things that could be done to prevent here from being deported." Couto, 311 F.3d at 183. Couto's counsel's advice was, however, incorrect. "Because the 1996 amendments to the immigration and Nationality Act eliminated all direction as to deportation of non-citizens convicted of aggravated felonies, her plea of guilty meant virtually automatic, unavoidable deportation. Id. At 183-84. As a result, the Second Circuit found that Couto's counsel had affirmatively misrepresented the deportation consequences of Couto's guilty plea and held that such an affirmative misrepresentation is objectively unreasonable, particularly in light of contemporary standards of attorney competence.

40. The Second Circuit also discussed evidence that “standards of attorney competence [may] have evolved to the point that a failure to inform a defendant of deportation consequences of his conviction would by itself now be objectively unreasonable” but did not reach the issue. Couto, 311 F.3d at 188. See also Downs-Morgan v. United States, 765 F.2d 1534, 1540-41 (11th Cir. 1985) (finding affirmative misrepresentation regarding immigration consequences, coupled with likelihood that petitioner would be imprisoned and executed after deportation, and could be ineffective assistance).

41. The circumstances of the instant case are analogous to those in Couto. The 9th Circuit agreed that where, as here, counsel has not merely failed to inform, but has effectively misled, his client about the immigration consequences of a conviction, counsel’s performance is objectively unreasonable under contemporary standards for attorney competence.

42. Counsel’s performance also fell below the American Bar Association’s ethical standard for criminal defense attorneys with respect to immigration consequences. The Supreme Court noted this standard in INS v. St. Cyr, 533 U.S. 289, 150 L. Ed. 2d 347, 121 S. Ct. 2271 (2001): The American Bar Association’s Standards of Criminal Justice provide that, if a defendant will face deportation as result of conviction, defense counsel ‘should fully advise the defendant of these consequences.’” Id. At 323 (quoting 3 ABA Standards for Criminal Justice 14-3.2 Comment, 75 (2d ed. 1982)). Although “breach of an ethical standard does not necessarily make out a denial of the Sixth Amendment guarantee of assistance of counsel,” Nix v. Whiteside, 475 U.S. 157, 165, 89 L. Ed. 2d 123, 106 S. Ct. 988 (1986), “prevailing norms of practice as reflected in American Bar Association Standards and the like... are guides to determining what is reasonable...” Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.

43. In the Strickland prejudice analysis, the determinative question is whether there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel’s unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Glover v. United States, 531 U.S. 198, 202-03, 148 L. Ed. 2d 604, 121 S. Ct. 696 (2002). To demonstrate this, “a defendant need not show that counsel’s deficient conduct more likely than not altered the outcome in the case.” Strickland, 466 U.S. at 693.

44. Mr. Rudy Mena alleges that, but for counsel’s deficient performance, the outcome of his proceedings would have differed in one of two ways. Specifically, Mr. Rudy Mena alleges that “had he knows that constituted an aggravated felony,’ he would have discussed with his lawyer the possibility of amending appeal or asking the [sentencing] court for downward departure.”

Although the sentencing judge would not have had the discretion to grant a downward departure solely on the basic of immigration consequences. United Sates v. Alvarez-Cardenas, 902 F.2d 734, 736-37 (9th Cir. 1990), Mr.Rudy Mena was potentially eligible for downward departures on other grounds. Had counsel and the court been aware that a nominally shorter sentence would avoid deportation; there is reasonable probability that the court would have imposed a sentence of less than one year or appeals the conviction to higher Court.

45. In addition, Mr.Rudy Mena explains that, had he been made aware of deportation consequences of his conviction, he would have explored the option of appeal the conviction and to negotiate to lower his sentence. Mr.Rudy Mena will suffer great lengths hardship by deportation and separation from his wife and children, who are all United States citizen. Taken together, these facts establish that but for counsel’s deficient performance, there is reasonable probability that Mr.Rudy Mena would have moved to appeal his conviction. After appealing the conviction to higher court. Mr.Rudy Mena could have renegotiated his sentence with the Sentencing Judge to avoid deportation; or the parties could have stipulated that Mr.Rudy Mena would be sentenced to less than one year in county jail.

46. As noted above, a sentencing court may exercise its discretion to sentence Petitioner to less than one year in county jail to avoid deportation, United States v. Leonti, 326 F.3d 1111, 1122 (9th Cir. 2003) (holding that petitioner could establish prejudice by shown that counsel’s deficient performance reduced likelihood that prosecution would make a substantial assistance motion, even though “the government has wide discretion in filing a substantial assistance motion, and the court has discretion in choosing to depart downward”). “A deprivation of an opportunity to have a sentencing court exercise its discretion in a defendant’s favor can constitute ineffective assistance of counsel.” Castro, 26 F.3d at 560 (holding that counsel’s failure to request that sentencing judge exercise its discretion to make judicial recommendation against deportation was prejudicial under Strickland) (citing United States v. Gorden, 854 F.2d 31, 32 (3^d Cir. 1988)). For the foregoing reasons, this court should conclude that Mr.Rudy Mena has established his claim of ineffective assistance of counsel under Strickland, which is fundamental error.

Analysis On Claims Of In Effective Assistance Of Counsel.

47. A defendant claiming ineffective assistance of counsel has the burden to show (1) counsel's performance was deficient, falling below an objective standard of reasonableness under prevailing professional norms, and (2) the deficient performance resulted in prejudice. (Strickland v Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 688; People v. Ledsma (1987) 43 Cal.3d 171, 216, 218. To establish prejudice, "[t]he defendant must show that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different." Strickland, supra 466 U.S. at 694. The defendant must affirmatively show counsel's deficiency involved a crucial issue and cannot be explained on the basis of any knowledgeable choice of tactics. People v. Jackson (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 264, 289. See Soriano Supra, 194 F.3d 1497.

THE CRIMINAL COURT ERRED PREJUDICIALLY BY FAILING TO GIVE SUA SPOTNTE AN INSTRUCTION ON POSSESSION OF CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE AS A LESSER INCLUDED OFFENSE OR POSSESSION FOR SALE

A. Introduction

49. The information charged that the possession for sale was committed by means to attempted to sale. Under the accusatory pleading test, simple possession is a lesser included offense of the possession for sale, i.e, the possession for sale had to involve the element of attempted to sale. In this case there was evidence upon which the court could have absolved Respondent of the possession for sale, but not the simple possession. As well be appointed out below, there were a significant number of inconsistencies between the statement Mr. Martinez Soto gave to the officer Schoales and his trial testimony, as well as other weaknesses in the prosecution’s case, so that the jury could absolved Petitioner of culpability for possession for sale, but not the lesser offense of simple possession. Therefore, the trial court should have instructed the jury that simple possession was lesser included offense of the possession for sale. Failure to do so was prejudicial error

B. Waiver of Sua Sponte Instructions.

50. Petitioner did not request an instruction on simple possession. However, the failure to give Sua Sponte instruction may be considered on appeal without objection; it is the duty of the court to ensure that the jury is properly instructed. (People v. Wickersham (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 307, 324-326 [overruled on other grounds in People v. Barton (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 186, 201].) The appeal reemphasized this principle in People v. Smith (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 196, 207, when it rejected the Attorney General’s claim that the defendant had waived his claim that the trial court failed to properly instruct n the weapons enhancements. “[w]here ...the error consists of breach of the trial court's fundamental instructional duty...", no objection is required. In that citation, the defendant need not object, and he need not "request amplification or modification."

As the Supreme Court noted in People v. Breverman (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 142, 154, "The obligation to instruct on lesser included offences exists even when as a matter of trial tactics, a defendant not only fails to request the instruction but expressly objects to its being given.[Citation.]"

In Breverman, the Supreme Court explained the broader interests served by the Sua Sponte instructional rule.

Just as the People have no legitimate interest in obtaining a conviction of a great offense than that established by the evidence, a defendant has no right to an acquittal when that evidence is sufficient to establish a lesser included offense. [Citation.] On the contrary as we have expressly, the rule seeks the most accurate possible judgment by "ensur[ing] that the jury will consider the full range of possible verdict" included in the charge, regardless of the parties wishes or tactics. [Citation.] (Breverman, supra, 19 Cal. 4th at P. 155.) [Emphasis added.]

Accordingly, even though Respondent did not request a lesser included instruction on battery, the trial court was not absolved of its duty to issue one.

C. Sua sponte Instructions.

51. A court must instruct Sua Sponte on general principles of law that are closely and openly connected with the facts presented at trial. (People v. Wickersham, supra, 32 Cal. 3d at P. 323, disapproved on other grounds in People v. Barton, supra, 12 Cal. 4th at p 200-201.) This sua sponte obligation extends to lesser included offenses if the evidence "raises a question as to whether all of the elements of the charged offense are present and there is evidence that would justify a conviction of such a lesser offense. (People v. Ramkeesoon (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 346, 351; accord, Barton, supra, 12 Cal. 4th at p 194-195.)

This instructional rule benefits both the prosecution and the defense (People v. Barton, (supra, 12 Cal. 4th at p. 194-195.) It:

[E]nsures that the jury be exposed to the full range of verdict option which, by operation of law and with full notice to both parties, are presented in the accusatory pleading itself and are thus closely and openly connected to the case. In this context, the rule prevents either party ... from forcing an all-or-nothing choice between conviction of the stated offense on the one hand, or complete acquittal on the other. Here, the rule encourages a verdict, within the charge chosen by the prosecution, that is neither “harsher [n]or more lenient than the evidence merits.” (People v. Briks (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 108, 119.) [original italics.]

52. The California Supreme Court has stated, “A criminal defendant is entitled to an instruction on a lesser included offense only if [citation] there is evidence which, if accepted by the trier of fact, would absolve [the] defendant from guilt of the greater offense [citation] but not the lesser. [Citation].” (People v. Memro (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 786, 871.) [Original italics.] The sua sponte duty to instruct on lesser-included offenses, unlike the duty to instruct on mere defenses, arises even against the defendant’s wishes, and regardless of the trial theories or tactics the defendant has actually pursued. (People v. Breverman, supra, 19 Cal. 4th 142, 154-155.) Doubts as to the sufficiency of the evidence should be resolved in favor of the accused. (People v. Flannel (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 668, 674-675.)

I declare under the penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States, and the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

DECLARATION OF RUDY MENA

I, Rudy Mena, hereby declare and say the following:

1. I am the Defendant and the Petitioner in this action. I execute this declaration in support of the court allowing me to file a late appeal in my case.
2. I was convicted pursuant to jury trial in case No. 05HF 1307. The verdict on my case was rendered on December 8, 2005. Following the verdict, I was sentenced on January 20, 2006.
3. On the day that the verdict was rendered, my attorney, Gabriel Silvers, simply told me that he was very sorry that he had lost my case. He did not, however, explain to me what the jury's findings were. He simply said that he would see me again on January 20, 2006. He never explained to me that I could appeal that verdict.
4. On January 20, 2006, Mr. Silvers appeared with me in court. He did not argue for a low sentence or anything. The Judge sentenced me to 3 years in state prison. I have since reviewed the transcripts, and it appears that the judge informed me that I had a right to appeal here, but I did not understand that I ever had the right to appeal the Judge's decision.
5. Moreover, Mr. Silvers never explained to me that I had a right to appeal the jury's verdict in my case. As a result, I did not ever understand that I could further challenge the jury verdict in my case. I had no idea when I had to file an appeal or how I could submit an appeal.
6. I ask this Court to allow me to appeal my conviction now, because I believe there were many errors in my case.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the following is true and correct and that if called to testify with respect thereto, I could do so completely.

Executed this 5th day of February, 2008 in El Centro, California.

Re: Rudy Mena
People v. Rudy Mena, Case No. 05HF1307

Dear Mr. Silvers:

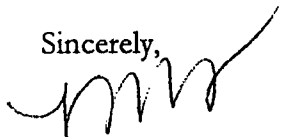

I represent Rudy Mena in an immigration matter. It is my understanding that you represented Mr. Mena during the above-referenced proceedings. Due to his conviction for a violation of Health & Safety Code §11351, Possession for Sale of a Controlled Substance, the Department of Homeland Security is attempting to remove Mr. Mena to Mexico.

Your responses to the following questions would greatly assist Mr. Mena in his immigration matter.

1. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Mena whether he wished to file an appeal after his conviction?
2. Did Mr. Mena ever tell you whether or not he wished to file an appeal of his conviction?
3. What advice did you give Mr. Mena regarding the procedure for an appeal?
4. What were Mr. Mena's concerns regarding an appeal?

Thank you in advance for your time and consideration. Should you have any questions about this matter, please do not hesitate to contact my office.

Sincerely,

Keli M. Reynolds
Counsel for Rudy Mena

Dated: March 4, 2008

Dear Mr. Silvers,

On July 29, 2005, I was arrested and charged of violation of Health & Safety Code § 11351, Possession for sale of Controlled Substance. On December 8, 2005, I was convicted by jury trial on one count of Possession for sale, and on January 20, 2006, I was sentenced to (3) years in state prison. You were representing me during all my Court proceedings to the trial. After I was paroled from state prison I was picked by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and was ordered to be deported to My Country Mexico. Mr. Silvers, your responses to the following questions would greatly assist me in my Immigration Matter:

1. Why you did not discuss with me about my right to appeal after I was convicted by the jury trial.
2. Why you did not advice me about the right of appeal, and that if I did not appeal I will be subject to Immigration consequences, and that I could be deported, excluded from entering the United States, and be separated from my aging mother.
3. Why you did not file an appeal of the conviction of the Jury trial.
4. Why you did not file any motions to challenge the probable cause and to unseal part of the search warrant.
5. Why you did not construct the jury about less charges and the elements of possession for sale.
6. Why you did not seek from the trial court about sua sponte construction to construct the jury of less charges and about the elements of possession for sale.
7. Why you did not file any motion to seek from the sentence Judge about less sentence to avoid any of Immigration consequences.
8. Why you did not advice the Trial Court that this is my first ever drug related case, and that I should be eligible for drug treatment program.

Mr. Silvers, the Immigration Judge ordered me to be deported from the United States, and he excluded me from the return to this Country for the rest of my life, I appealed the Judge's decision, my case now is pending in the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Sincerely Yours,

Rudy Mera
